

Daily Rundown

FROM THE CHRONICLE

Written today by Managing Editor Nadia Bey

Good morning!

Here's what you need to know:

- Students, alumni and employees came together Wednesday evening to discuss recent demands put forth by Latinx student groups.
- You can count on an economics degree being slightly easier to obtain, as recent changes to the Bachelor of Arts eliminated some of the math requirements.
- Future campus politicians may have a better shot at joining DSG, as the Senate considers increasing the number of senators from 55 to 60, among other proposed changes.

- First-year Lincoln Hama and sophomore Dagny Edison write that the University's response to Saturday's bench burning is "entirely out of proportion" and that many students didn't know what they were doing was wrong.

Duke women's lacrosse 2022 season preview

After making a run to the Elite Eight in their first NCAA tournament since 2016 last season, this year's Blue Devils have their eyes set on even bigger goals—they want to win it all. Read More

From freshmen to Fuqua: Duke women's lacrosse's graduate students prepare for one last ride

Exactly four years since they first took the field in that big win against Elon, the fifth-year students will compete in the home-opener against Gardner-Webb. The Blue Devils have a lot of goals for what's to come this season, but one of the main things they want to do is enjoy it on their terms. Read More

Reece Beekman, the 3-2 zone and an X's-&-O's showdown: How Duke men's basketball fell to Virginia

After trading schematic blows for nearly 40 minutes, Duke finally had the upper hand. It thought it had the perfect weapon to slay the Cavaliers. It turned out the Blue Devils were gripping tightly to a double-edged sword. Read More

Opinion

The man from Lubbock

Maybe it's a note your mom sent you in the mail, maybe it's a kind gesture from a friend, maybe it's a man from Lubbock reminding you just how amazing it is to stroll into one of the most legendary stadiums in the country whenever you feel like it. Read More

A Chromebook in a Sea of Macs

I am a low income minority student, a label that I am neither proud of or ashamed of. At least, that's what I want to believe, but understandably it's more complicated than that. Read More
